Class History

Looking back over our high school life, we who are about to graduate can now regard it as a four-act play entitled "The Quest for Knowledge."

Four years ago on a balmy September morning, a cast of eighty-five reported for the first rehearsal. Directing this act were Mrs. M. G. Thompson and Mr. Frank Wilson, Jr. Hilliard Staton and Grant Wilcox, as presidents of the two divisions, played the leading roles. Carol Graye and Mamie Johnson were cast as class queens. Thirteen members performed in the glee club, six in the band, nine on the basketball team, and two on the baseball team. The most vivid scene in this act was the Freshman Ball, which we all enjoyed.

As wise sophomores we were a little more familiar with play acting. Mrs. S. L. Davenport and Mrs. O. B. Myers directed Act II. Five newcomers joined the troupe. Playing leads this year were DeRoy Gorham, and Shelton Wilson. Exceptional performances were given by Essie Briley and Myrtle Short, as class queens; Mamie Dickens, N. H. A. queen; Willie Jones, Little Theatre Award winner; William Moore, World History Award winner; and Grant Wilcox, Student Council presidential nominee. James Lewis "stole the show," when he became eligible to enter Fisk University on the Ford Accelerated Program.

Curtain call for the third act! Our troupe of approximately sixty juniors reported for rehearsal to Miss E. L. McConnell and Mr. A. E. Murrell. We knew this act would be exciting! Grant Wilcox played the leading role. Carol Graye and Anna Hunt performed as class queens. Other promising actors were Fred Outterbridge and Rudy Streeter, members of the All-Tournament Basketball Team; Argie Keel, French Award winner; Mamie Johnson, C. B. Award winner; James Lewis and John Sumrell, Marshals; and Grant Wilcox, Student Council presidential nominee for a second term. One outstanding scene in this act was an oratorical contest, sponsored by the class after studying famous speeches in American Literature. John Greene won first prize; Elbert Kilpatrick, second; and Shelton Wilson, third. The most breath-taking scene in the whole play was "Moonlight and Roses," the setting for our Junior-Senior Banquet. Everyone played his role well in this scene.

As the curtain opened on the last act and we looked toward graduation, we knew we had to perform well. Mrs. E. B. Graves and Mrs. L. C. Hunter directed us in this last bit of drama. The cast insisted that Grant Wilcox continue as lead. Important parts were held by Carol Graye, Homecoming queen; Mamie Johnson, F. B. L. A. queen; Fred Outterbridge, member, All-State Second Football Team; and Richard Armfield and Rudy Streeter, Captains, Varsity Basketball Team. All members of the cast participated wholeheartedly in trying to make the 1956 EPPESONION a success.

The final curtain falls, but the "Quest for Knowledge" must go on. Out of gratitude to our directors and our well-wishers, we shall strive to apply successfully, on the stage of life, the principles of play production we have learned at Eppes.

Senior Class Prophecy

Someone said that there were no signs of success in the hearts and minds of those 1956 at Eppes High. Could it have been you? Oh, yes, no doubt, but do you know - - - - -

While making my world tour, I decided to find as many of my fellow graduates as I could. I am, incidentally, Carol Graye.

My first ambition was to travel back to North Carolina. As I stopped by the new broadcasting station in Raleigh, I was amazed to find that John Greene is a news commentator. David Gilbert is president of Ford Motor Company there.

Rudy Streeter is a pharmacist in his own drugstore in Durham, and Matthew Barnhill is a lawyer. I found two of my classmates in Greensboro at A. and T. College. Valeria Langley and Frank Norris are band instructors there. Claretta Ward and Barbara Dags are music instructors at Ligon High School.

Boarding my plane for the North, I was surprised to find that my airline hostess was Shirley Taylor. She told me that Queenie Hemby is also an airline hostess with TWA.

In Washington, D.C., I found Argie Keel and Pearlie Turnage, both successful beauticians. At Freedman's hospital in Washington were Bessie Eaton and Doris Roundtree. Bessie is supervisor of nurses, and Doris is laboratory technician. On a casual tour of the Supreme Court Building, I ran into the surprise of surprises - - Grant Wilcox was sitting on the Supreme Court bench.

Myrtle Short and Mildred Hunt, too, are nurses. They are employed in the Mt. Sinai Hospital in New York. Also at the hospital is Carolyn Reeves, a fine surgical nurse.

Two of our most prosperous electronic engineers today are Freddie Outterbridge and John Sumrell now in Chicago.

DeRoy Gorham is a brilliant young architectural engineer in Lansing, Michigan. James Lewis and Coniel Holiday are well known electrical engineers in Durham, New Hampshire.

William Moore is a very successful draftsman in Cleveland, Ohio. He recently designed one of the most beautiful hotels there.

Who would ever think that Bernice Moore would be a case worker? She is, and a fine one, too. I last saw her in Muncie, Indiana.

Among my classmates who wanted to attend business schools were William McGlone, now a realtor in Memphis, Tennessee; Bernice Banks, a public stenographer in Denver, Colorado; and Hilliard Staton, a certified public accountant in Arkansas.

We thought that Willie Jones would be an actor, but he's a famous civil lawyer in Minneapolis, Minnesota.

Rovena Hardy now applies her artistic ability on people's heads. She's a well known hair stylist in Kansas City, Kansas.

Benjamin Johnson and Billy Lynch graduated from Meharry Medical College with very high honors as dental technicians. Anna Hunt is a stenographer in their office in Portland, Maine.

Visiting the University of California, I found Mamie Dickens teaching business education there. Ruby Joyner and Andrew Gorham both are progressive physical education teachers at the high school in Berkeley, California.

Leaving the state I met Catherine Foreman en route to the Far East, where she is engaged in missionary work.

Mamie Johnson is in Paris assisting Christian Dior, the noted dress designer, and believe it or not, Veree Harris is his favorite model. Virginia Newton is a cosmetologist. She has her own salon on the Champs Elysees.

All Europe was agog over the new play, starring Elwood Kilp, at the new Globe Theatre in London. I had to see it, and I'm glad I did, for the dynamic actor was none other than our promising Kilpatrick.

Serving our country are Lieutenant Mary Tyson in the U. S. Air Force; Captain Harvey Darden in the marines, and General Shelton B. Wilson in the army.

Althea Duncan is being kept very busy operating her nursery in Germany. Bertha Gaye is an X-ray technician at a near by hospital.

My transportation was furnished by the Commander-in-Chief of the Naval Air Force, who is, as you guessed, my husband Clennie Cox.

- - - - - Now in 1966, as I gaze over those ten years, I marvel at the success of my classmates.

Last Will and Testament

State of Learning
County of Education
City of Eppes

Because we the class of 1956 are leaving dear old Eppes, we have a few old, precious possessions we should like to bequeath to those we think might need them.

Article I

To Eppes, our second home, we donate a new set of bricks and a new coat of paint.

Article II

To Mr. Davenport, our faithful principal, we leave a bottle of sleeping pills that he may acquire some much deserved rest.

To the faculty we leave bottles of Vitamin A, B, C, and D tablets hoping to restore all the lost energy our mentors expended in our behalf.

Article III

To the underclassmen, we leave our advice to keep striving up the ladder whose top rung is success.

Article IV

Carolyn Reeves leaves her quiet dignity to Joanne Allen. Marva Moore bequeaths forty pounds of her weight to Hennie Thomas.

Frank Norris, being of sound mind, does leave his expensive Clarinet to Geneva Porter.

Freddie Outterbridge leaves his trim-fitting basketball suit to his brother Marvin.

Mary Tyson leaves her corny jokes to Loretta Dupree.

Ben Johnson leaves his neat handwriting to Edward Lewis.

Verree Harris leaves her delightful catnaps in each of her classes to some tired and deserving junior.

John Sumrell leaves his poise and quiet dignity to all juniors who laugh too much.

Mamie Dickens leaves her seat in the beauty salon to Delois Little.

Willie Jones leaves all the girls sighing with relief.

Queenie Hemby leaves her affability to Theresa Daggs.

William McGlone leaves his sense of humor to Robert Edwards.

Virginia Newton leaves the rural districts for her kinsfolk. She prefers New York.

Lester Best leaves his artistic skill to Wilma Perkins.

Bernice Banks donates her unlimited gossiping ability to Rosa Lovett.

Clennie Cox wills one-half of his knack for dressing to James Brewington.

Mamie Johnson leaves her ability to be best dressed to Wista Adams.

John Green is giving Floyd Dickens his oratorical tone of voice in the hope that he will talk louder.

Doris Roundtree leaves her small eyes to Mary McClinton.

Matthew Barnhill leaves Virgil Lynch the burden of carrying and playing the Sousaphone next year.

Ruby Joyner presents to Billy Clark two measly drum sticks.

James Lewis leaves his height to Robert Carney.

Barbara Daggs is donating her beat up Underwood typewriter to Annie Porter to peck on.

Elbert Kilpatrick leaves all his instructors in a nervous condition.

Bessie Eaton bequeaths her table in the tea room to Valgene Gibbs.

Mildred Hunt leaves her long silky hair to Minnie Randolph. Rudy Streeter leaves his Roadmaster Buick to his brother Joel.

Harvey Darden wills each of his weary, fagged-out textbooks to William Teel.

Though a little ragged, Billy Lynch passes his football socks on to Joe Baker.

Andrew Gorham says if his football suit will fit anyone on next year's team, he can have it.

David Gilbert gives the Moye twins a small portion of his height.

Coniel Holliday leaves his mechanical brain to Melvin Norfleet.

Myrtle Short is giving some of her hair to Jane Jeffreys.

William Moore passes on his job as the editor-in-chief of the EPPESONION to Jasper Armwood.

Catherine Foreman wills her lady like disposition to Adele Joyner.

Althea Duncan leaves her foot-steps to her brother Marvin.

Even if thy have been used, Carol Graye leaves her false teeth to Patricia Thomas.

Anna Hunt leaves her gorgeous red skirt to Thelma Lofton.

Rovena Hardee just had to leave her marvelous hair styles to Geraldine Moore.

Claretta Ward says you all may share her lovely instructors.

Argie Keel leaves her high average to Governor Anderson.

Shelton Wilson leaves his unabridged dictionary to Robert Parker.

Bertha Gaye leaves her "I don't know's" to Doris Spell.

DeRoy Gorham is giving his job at the florist to the lucky boy who can get it.

Bernice Moore is leaving her Dorothy Dandridge walk to Faye Clark.

Hilliard Staton passes his football position to Edmond Love.

Shirley Taylor leaves her dance step to Gloria Nimmo.

Pearlie Turnage leaves her quietness to Yvonne Jones.

Grant Wilcox leaves his favorite record, "I'll Be Loving You Eternally" to Beulah Weeks.

I, Valeria Langley, do hereby leave my front seat in each of my classes to Rosa Duncan.

And on this day of June, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and fifty-six, I do sign and seal this testament as my last official act.
